

TEMPERAMENTAL, a collective of Pacific Northwest musicians brought together by soprano Linda Tsatsanis, specializes in the music of the late Renaissance, early Baroque, high Baroque and Classical periods. The musicians of TEMPERAMENTAL are in demand as soloists and collaborators in the United States and overseas and can be found on the faculty of prestigious music institutions across the country. While most ensembles consist of a static stable of musicians regardless of the repertoire, TEMPERAMENTAL is based on the concept of a fluid and adaptive ensemble, which changes for the benefit of each program and features each players' specialty. This not only allows for unique and diverse programs covering a wide range of periods with multiple instrumental combinations, but also ensures a fresh, exciting, and different performance each time.
